Durham Organic Gardeners' Association

is a small, friendly group of enthusiastic organic gardeners. DOGA has been promoting the organic way in Durham since it was founded in 1996. We believe that organic gardening is the right way to garden.

"wildlife friendly, environmentally sound and still breathtakingly beautiful and productive".
Rachel de Thame

Our membership profile ranges from the experienced and expert to the newcomer who is struggling with the perennial problems of weed and pests.

We meet monthly and our programme is varied. It includes talks by nationally recognized speakers on topics of members' interests, the sharing of expertise and experience at members' nights, visits to gardens, nurseries, and organic growers, as well as social events. Our annual "Potato Days", where we sell up to thirty varieties of organic seed potato, are popular and well supported by members and the general public.

Members find that the opportunity to exchange views, experiences, successes and failures, plants and seeds, is supportive and beneficial and great fun.
